Everyone's participation is needed

By Jeannine Fearing

This may make some of you mad, but it has reached the point where subtle hints are no longer effective. As you can see from the picture of the scoreboard below, even at the beginning of the fourth quarter of Friday's contest against Hallettsville, the game was still within reach with only a ten point spread.

When the Raiders were backed up to their own goal line and needed support and encouragement to prevent the fourth Hallettsville touchdown, the picture below shows what the track in front of the Rice stands looked like. (The playing field is to the left.)

Enough said!

Texas lawyers to defend Hutchison

U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison dismissed Washington, D.C. lawyer John Dowd last week, and Nov. 29 has been set as her trial date in state district court.

Hutchison has hired two Texas lawyers to defend her against the charges which allege wrongdoing during her tenure as Texas state treasurer.

Replacing Dowd are Houston attorney Dick DeGuertin and University of Texas law professor Michael Tigar. DeGuertin is to serve as Hutchison's lead counsel and Tigar will file legal briefs. Hutchison spokesman David Beckwith said the decision to hire Texas lawyers was made because the trial will be taking place in Texas.

DeGuertin was legal counsel to Branch Davidson cult leader David Koresh, who died April 19 in a fire that incinerated the cult's compound in Waco. Beckwith said Tigar will concentrate on "whether the legal process is being abused in a political way."

Hutchison is charged with three counts of official misconduct, one count of tampering with governmental records and one count of tampering with physical evidence. If convicted, she could serve up to 61 years in prison or jail and pay fines up to $43,000.

In addition to the Nov. 29 trial date in Travis County, an Oct. 18 deadline has been set for pretrial motions to be filed for a pretrial hearing scheduled for Oct. 28.

A Travis County grand jury indicted Hutchison and two former treasury department aides on Sept. 27 on criminal charges after an investigation that lasted more than three months. The aides have requested a separate trial and will be given a later court date.

McCown said for now he would consider only equity issues: whether Texas fairly distributes more than $15 billion a year in state and local revenue to school districts.

He said he would wait until the end of the trial, which would last two to four weeks, to decide whether to convene a second trial on adequate funding with physical evidence. If convicted, she could serve up to 61 years in prison or jail and pay fines up to $43,000.

To The Editor & You

Coach should be leader, example

To the Editor:

What is a Coach? A teacher, a leader, a good listener, above reproach, an example to his students - One who can encourage instead of discourage his students? Should he be a person of such high character that he can set aside his own personal feelings for the common good of his or her team? I would hope so.

My son is a senior this year. He left another athletic program after he was invited to come back and play at Rice. He was so excited. He was going to play at the same school his dad had played.

When he began this school year we

Greytak vs. Mauro

Marta Greytak, a Public Utility Commission member for the past six years, will seek the Republican nomination to challenge three-term Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, a Democrat.

She will face state Rep. Robert Eckles, R-Houston, who is stepping down from the Legislature, in the GOP primary.

Greytak called Mauro "part of the entrenched political class that has created so much hate for politics and distrust of government among the people."

She criticized Mauro, who headed President Clinton's campaign in Texas last year, for using state phones to do campaign work.

"He has turned the Texas Land Commission into an annex of the Clinton White House," Greytak said.

Mauro, first elected in 1982, is expected to seek re-election in 1994.

Caucus Funding Halted

A Texas House committee last week halted public funding of House legislative caucuses and recommended that the groups be barred from fund raising during a legislative session and be required to disclose expenditures and contributions.

"It had been perceived, rightly or wrongly, that caucuses are able to go outside the bounds of an elected official in their raising money and their expenditures, and we certainly do not agree with that," said Layton Black, D-Goldthwaite, chairman of the House Administration Committee.

Bustamante Sentenced

Former U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante will appeal the federal influence-peddling conviction that drew him a 42-month prison sentence, his attorney announced.

"Absolutely, there will be an appeal," said A.L. Herndon, one member of the defense team that represented Bustamante on racketeering and bribery charges in July.

U.S. District Judge Ed Prado also ordered Bustamante to pay $55,100 in fines and court costs, and sentenced him to two years for a conviction for accepting an illegal gratuity.
