If you have not read the articles appearing in the Headlight in the Jan. 19, and Jan. 26 issues, do yourself a favor and try to find you a copy or go to the the library and read them. These two splendid articles concern the Attwater's Prairie Chicken Festival scheduled for March 24-26. You will learn what activities are being planned and how efforts have been made to protect the endangered number of prairie chickens in our vicinity, also lists of the birds nesting in our area.

By Elizabeth Boothe, Reporter For the week of Feb. 9, 1995 was chaired by Leslie Matthews. Gary Wood from the Houston Audubon Society said that "Eagle Lake is sitting on a potential gold mine because of its birdwatching potentiality." He stated that if people knew this, they would travel to Eagle Lake instead of Arizona, the Rio Grande and other places. Year-round birds here include the cardinal, bob-white quail, mocking bird, and crow. To this group during the summer is added the Mississipp kite. Winter visitors are the red-tailed hawk, robin and cedar waxwing. Our community owes much to the late A very interesting meeting took place Jan.26, at the Middle School and Tom Waddell, State Game Warden, who did much to promote the welfare of the prairie chicken and other avian species in our midst. There is a case of thibits in honor of Mr. Waddell Prairie Edge.

I am also recommending your reading a very enlightening article in the Jan. 1995 Texas Highways. The article is entitled "The Eagles of Texas." There is an interesting account of how the baid eagle came to be chosen our national emblem. The following is an excerpt from the article: "In older Texas, Kiowa Apaches passed along folk tales of eagles and coyotes from generation to generation. A Karankawa Indian folk tale ave the town of Eagle Lake, about 50 niles west of Houston, its name. Steve Labuda, manager of the Attwater's Prairie Chicken Refuge, expressed a great interest in the upcoming festival which will favor the prairie chicken once an indigenous bird now on the verge of extinction. Reese Construction Company for many years. We appre-ciate this valuable addition to our artifacts and wish to thank Louis Schorlemmer and his crew for moving it to our museum property. I hope you already have entered either March 31 or April 1 on your calendar for the date you expect to attend the production by the Prairie Edge Players of A Bull in a China Shop. Look for a list of the cast in next week's Headlight. Rehearsals are progressing well. The museum is open on Sat. and Sun. afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. Call us if you would like to arrange for a special tour. Teachers, the school year seems to be going by quickly. How about making plans soon to take your students on a tour?

I am thrilled to see so many flow-ers in Eagle Lake. Bluebonnets will probably be appearing soon. Pansies are really beautiful this year. If you have one or more Amaryllis plants, hope they are bringing you as much as joy as my plant is giving me. "Prayer is the voice of the heart as it goes to talk with God." - AJ. Armstong
