WHILE YOU'RE PUTTING YOUR NOSE TO THE GRINDSTONE, WHERE'S THE GUY IN THE NEXT OFFICE PUTTING HIS?

More than eight million employed Americans used an illicit drug at least one time in the last month. Nearly 14 million used one in the past year. And while many users believe they're getting away with something, the consequences are everywhere.

Drug users are reported to be involved in 200 to 300 percent more industrial accidents. They sustain nearly 300 percent more compensable injuries. And they use up to three times more sick leave. So the question isn't only who the guy in the next office is doing. It's whether he's even shown up for work.

It's enough to make you, the non-user, furious about having to carry the load. But, after you're finished being mad, do something. Get involved. Because more than anything, what a drug user in the workplace needs to know is he's not going to get away with it. Call 1-800-269-4237 and find out what you can do.

You'll be helping yourself, your company, and most of all, the guy in the next office.
