Foot

By Dr. Eric R. Tepper, Podiatrist AGE-OLD PROBLEMS

When most people think about getting older, such physical changes as laugh lines and hair loss likely come to mind. Fat pads and toe joints are usually not high on the worry list. How the feet age, though, may have more to do with a healthy long life than an ocean-full of wrinkle cream. Like facial skin, the skin of the feet loses elasticity with age, making feet more susceptible to calluses and injuries. Toenails may either become thin and brittle and infected. Bones tend to become brittle, actually changing shape. Joints lose flexibility, and fat pads start to thin on the heels and balls of the feet. Blood vessels may narrow, arteries clog, and veins enlarge. Ligaments, tendons, and muscles tend to weaken.

No matter how old your feet are, if they hurt, it's important to find out why. Following diagnosis, it's then time to formulate a treatment plan which may consist of medications, orthotics, or surgery. Many foot problems evolve over time, from age, slow-growing medical conditions, improper shoes, physical stress, and muscular imbalance. Whatever your foot problems - don't try to cure themon your own - it's important to communicate with your doctor. My offices are located at Rice District Community Hospital. Call 234-5571. I am there every Tuesday. P.S. Regular foot care, including daily self-inspections, can help ensure ealthy feet despite the changes of aging.

Robby Cook Will Work for Rural Texas

Robby Cook is a fourth generation farmer and small business owner

 Agriculture and small business are key to rural economic development. Let's get government to stand behind and not in the way of economic opportunities for rural Texas.

Gang violence and drugs are not just a Houston or Austin problem. Rural communities are becoming more of a target of crime every day. Keeping our families safe and secure is essential for the future of rural Texas.

The education of our children and the method by which we fund education should be a top priority for all of us in rural Texas.

 Rural Texas needs leadership that will stand up to the legislators from the urban areas to make sure we are not "short changed" in the legislative process. Rural Texans must stand together to protect our way of life.
