New enrollment set for 'Texas Tomorrow'

John Sharp, State Comptroller of Public Accounts, has announced that the next enrollment period for the Texas Tomorrow Fund will be open Monday, Nov. 18, 1996, and run through Monday, Feb. 17, 1997.

The Texas Tomorrow Fund is the state's innovative program which allows families to lock in the costs of their children's future college tuition at today's prices.

"Shrewd shoppers know that early summer is the time to plan for the end-of-the-year holiday season," Sharp said. "Now they have another option to add to their gift giving lists—much of the cost of a college education with the Texas Tomorrow Fund."

The program's second enrollment period was approved by the Texas Prepaid Higher Education Tuition Board at its quarterly meeting in Austin.

The seven-member Board, which oversees the fund, is chaired by Sharp and includes John C. Anderson, president of Hale County State Bank in Plainview; Michael D. Gollub, head of the Gollub, Morgan, Peddy and Co. accounting firm in Tyler; Dr. Roy McClung, former president of Wayland Baptist University in Plainview; now retired and living in Lubbock; Charles Miller, chairman of Meridian Advisors, Ltd., an investment firm in Houston; Jerry Pedersen, executive vice president of the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston; and Beth Weakley, senior vice president of Frost National Bank in San Antonio.

The Texas Tomorrow Fund's debut enrollment period, Jan. 2 to April 1, 1996, resulted in more than 41,000 contracts being purchased, worth an estimated $372 million.

Sharp said 81% of the initial contracts purchased were for the senior college plan which covers tuition and required fees for up to 120 credit hours at any public senior college or university in Texas. Another 12% were for the junior-senior college plan, covering up to 64 credit hours at a public junior or technical college plus up to 60 credit hours at a public senior college or university, for a total of 124 credit hours.

Five percent of the contracts purchased were for the junior college plan which pays for up to 64 credit hours of tuition and required fees at a public junior or technical college, and 2% were for the private college plan, covering the average cost of tuition and required fees for up to 120 credit hours at any of the state's private colleges and universities.

Sharp said that the most popular of the four available payment options for contracts purchased during the initial enrollment period was the monthly installment plan until graduation, with more than 44% of purchasers signing up for this plan. The lump sum payment option was chosen by 23% of those who bought contracts. The 5-year monthly installment payment was chosen by 17% of purchasers, and nearly 16% chose the 10-year monthly payment plan.

In addition, about one-fifth of all contracts purchased were changed from one plan to another.

"Some parents realized that after taxes, there was more money left to spend on their children's education than originally planned," Sharp said. "As a result, they changed their payment plans and contract options from one to another—proof that the flexibility built into the Texas Tomorrow Fund works."

The prepaid college tuition plan, first proposed by Sharp in 1994, is considered one of the largest and most flexible plans in the country.

Sharp said that although the program isn't currently accepting registration applications, his special toll-free 1-800-445-GRAD hotline is still taking approximately 200 calls a day from families who want more information about the fund.

In addition to Sharp's hotline, Texans with a computer and modem (See Fund, Page 10)

Native Plant Society

The Native Plant Society of Texas, Columbus Chapter (NPSOT), held a meeting on May 2 at the Nesbit Memorial Library.

Kelley Bender of Texas Parks and Wildlife presented a program on creating a wild-life habitat in your backyard.

She discussed the basic requirements for attracting wildlife: food, water, shelter and space.

Diversity in plant species is a necessity for providing the elements for wild life all year long. She stressed the importance of native plants adapted to the area for food and shelter.

Mexican Plum (Prunus mexicana), Texas Red Bud (Cercis canadensis texensis) and the Carolina Buckthorn (Rhamnus caroliniana) are a few noteworthy trees that are native to our region.

The shade loving Turk's Cap (Malvaviscus arboreus var. drummondii), Coral Honeysuckle (Lonicera sempervirens) and Cardinal flower (Loebelia cardinalis) attract hummingbirds and butterflies. Native grasses like the Little Blue Stem provide shelter and is a food source.

Bender's presentation motivated the 32 members and guests to "wildscape" and enjoy the esthetic value of the wildlife habitat.

The June meeting will be held June 6 at the Church of the Latter Day Saints, 1023 Milam, Columbus, at 7 p.m. We are fortunate to have Sally and Andy Wasowski, co-authors of "Landscaping with Native Plants", as our guest speakers. They also wrote the critically acclaimed "Requiem for a Lawn Mower".

Sally and Andy poke gentle fun at some of the "evils" of the typical American landscape: overwatering, chemicals and topiary, which they call plant abuse.

By Dr. Eric R. Tepper, Podiatrist

A CHILD'S PAIN IN THE NIGHT

Just about the time children start sleeping reliably through the night—and parents start remembering what it is like to wake up actually feeling rested—a new kind of nightmare can arise. Nighttime foot cramps often strike children between the ages of about two and five. The cramps can be painful enough to wake a child from a deep sleep. While such discomfort used to be dismissed as "growing pains", we now know that there are several common causes of the cramps. A foot or leg strain that occurred hours earlier can work itself out as a cramp in the middle of the night. Likewise, the fatigue of a day of hard play can later show up as a cramp. Poor blood circulation brought on by a child's awkward sleeping position can also cause cramping. In cold weather, chilly sleeping temperatures may trigger cramps as well.

When you have a small child to care for, we believe one of the most important things we can provide you with is education. And taking care of the feet can begin too early. If there seems to be a problem with your child's feet, we hope you'll consider giving us a call at 234-5571, at Rice District Community Hospital. I am there every Tuesday. We bring you these columns in the hopes of showing you how the many benefits of podiatric medicine can keep you and all members of your family walking in comfort.

P.S. Most foot cramps can be eased by gentle massage. Contact your podiatrist about any persistent or severe foot pain.
