State Department of Insurance to control HMOs

Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer said last week the Texas Department of Insurance would take full regulatory control over health maintenance organizations this fall.

The agency presently shares regulatory control of HMOs with the Texas Department of Health.

Bomer said the Legislature will have to approve a plan to make the switch permanent, and meetings to discuss the issue were scheduled last week.

Jeff Wurzel, executive director of the Texas Health Maintenance Organization Association said the regulatory change could deal with regulatory changes easier for the 44 HMO programs that cover 2.2 million Texans.

"I think the change will be positive. We hope that at one agency, the process will be improved," Wurzel said.

Lisa McGriffert, a policy analyst for Consumers Union Southwest Regional Office, said the change could be good, but she said ending the health department's regulatory role will take away a check-and-balance system.

And she said the health department knows more about health-care needs than the insurance department.

But she hopes Bomer will hire staff who will keep a close watch on the growing HMO industry.

NAACP Appeals Court Order

Attorneys for the NAACP appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court last week to overturn a federal court order

By Lyndell Williams and Ed Sterling
 Texas Press Association

requiring special elections in 13 congressional districts in Texas.

The attorneys raised many objections to the court order, arguing that special elections would be highly disruptive, that it is not necessary to redraw 13 districts to correct constitutional violations in only three districts, and that with less than three months until the general election, minority voters would not be represented.

A federal court panel of three judges earlier this month redrew 13 of Texas' 30 congressional district boundaries that were declared unconstitutional because they were racially gerrymandered.

Attorney General Dan Morales is considering whether to file an appeal to stay the panel's order for special elections.

Tobacco Trial to Stay Put

Texas' $4 billion lawsuit industry will stay in Texas where Attorney General Morales filed it, a federal judge ruled last week.

U.S. District Judge David Folsom rejected arguments from tobacco industry lawyers who sought to move the lawsuit to Austin, which would have been more convenient.

Drought Hurts Cotton Crop

Total production of cotton, corn, peanuts and hay is lower than last year because of the drought, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said last week.

Morales filed suit in March against the tobacco industry, accusing it of committing fraud and violating federal antitrust and racketeering laws. The suit seeks reimbursement to the state for the costs of treating tobacco-related illnesses.

College Testing Scores Improve

The Texas Education Agency announced last week that students who took the American College Testing exam this year had a higher composite score than those who took it last year.

This year, 55,442 Texas seniors took the ACT, scoring a composite of 20.2. Last year, the 59,857 students who took the exam had a composite score of 20.1. The national average composite score this year was 20.9.

"These results clearly demonstrate that taking challenging courses in high school is a prerequisite for success in college," said state Education Commissioner Mike Moses.

"For students who are planning to attend college after high school, taking challenging courses is not a luxury but a necessity. There is no substitute for good solid academic preparation."

More students take the Scholastic Aptitude Test than the ACT, but all colleges and universities in Texas accept ACT results for admission consideration.

Immigrants Rebuild School Buses

When public schools reopened across the state last week, nearly 600 school buses rebuilt by inmates hit the streets.

More than 200 inmates at a Texas Department of Criminal Justice unit near Huntsville rebuilt old buses, saving thousands of dollars for local school districts.

Shawn Blair, manager of the school bus repair plant, said the criminal justice department earned nearly $2 million last year.

Other Capital Highlights

Immigration officers last week arrested about 135 illegal immigrants working at Sun City Georgetown, a retirement housing project being developed by Dell Webb Corp. of Phoenix.

One day earlier, officers made 80 other arrests in the Austin area. Sun City officials said all of those arrested were employed by contractors, except one who had provided documents before being hired.

ABOUT TOWN...

"An old wives' tale says, "If it rains at your funeral, you've gone straight to heaven." It poured at Kyle's.

"Coach Ginger Smith stopped by the office at the end of last week to thank us for printing her "experience" at the Olympic Games. She said she lost a heart from a bracelet she wears frequently, so actually "her heart belongs to Atlanta."

"If you haven't been to Rice High School lately, you're in for a treat. They completely repaved the parking lot. Unfortunately, there are a few low spots that puddle when it rains, but it's a whole lot better than it had been.

Also, the structures surrounding the baseball field look to be freshly painted a brilliant blue. In fact, I hadn't noticed them in years past, but they sure stand out now.

"Now that school is in full swing, how many of you out there are now constantly wearing your chauffeur's hat. The bad thing about it is it's a long round trip to and from the high school. Makes me, at least, wish my older one could drive. But then there's all the worry that entails. You just can't win!
