Rice holds car decorating contest

By Stephanie Thompson

The Rice Varsity Cheerleaders hosted a car decorating contest for the last football game.

Although there weren't many participants, Brooke Cranek and her carpool had enough spirit for the entire school. Her old Ford pickup truck had everything imaginable on it from balloons and streamers to a cow's skull on the front. They also decorated several other vehicles once they got to school.

For Brooke's decorated truck and school spirit, she received first and second place totaling thirty dollars which she split with her carpool.

Meet the Lady Raider

By Carrie Engstrom

The light shines bright on Rachelle Kallina this week. Wearing jersey #22, she plays guard for the Lady Raider basketball team.

Rachelle feels the team has what it takes to win a district championship. She also feels members get along like sisters. "Our personalities just click," she thinks the coach has the drive in her heart to push and push each player to reach higher than their potential. The team has finally established a basketball program here at Rice and it is because of the coach. In the past, a new coach was expected every year.

Coach Jane Laws has been here for three years and Rachelle feels the team owes it to her to do their best and win. The team's strong point is their quickness. Rachelle says that, "Every-one on our team has the ability to be quick." She also comments that with these two qualities, they can dominate the court. Rachelle comments that they must believe in themselves. She feels confidence is needed to win.

Rachelle is the daughter of Roxie and Marsha Kallina of Garwood.

She is on the volleyball, basketball, track and powerlifting teams, student council president, co-head cheerleader and a member of FCA.

Ag Moos

On Monday, Nov. 11, Lauren Sublet participated in the District IV FFA Creed Speaking contest at Columbus High School.

In this contest, greenhand FFA members had to recite the five paragraphs of the FFA Creed by memory. They were judged on accuracy and public speaking abilities.

Lauren has been working hard since the beginning of school to prepare for this contest. This was her first public speaking event and she was very nervous, but she did well, placing eighth against kids from Columbus, Fayetteville, Brenham and many other schools in District IV.

Lauren is the daughter of Howard and Gretchen Wilkerson of Eagle Lake.

She is a member of the Flag Corps, and on the weekend she enjoys being with her boyfriend.

Scholarship bulletins

By Risa Waddell

If you are a senior, you are probably wondering about scholarships. Well, you're in luck. Whether you are aware of it or not, the school posts bulletins regularly for seniors' use.

As the school receives information from different colleges, the counselors make it available to the students through these bulletins.

The bulletins include information about colleges, different subject matters, athletic associations and more.

Also listed are qualifications, requirements (essays, transcripts), the amount offered and form due date.

Bulletins are issued to senior English, science, and government teachers. There is also one posted regularly on the glass wall in the commons.

If any graduating seniors are interested after looking at the bulletin, they should see their counselors for an application.

"BOARD-CERTIFIED" FOOT CARE

You can find the term "board-certified" attached to many job titles, and it usually means that a person has passed some sort of professional review. What exactly does it mean, though, when it comes to choosing a podiatrist? While any doctor may claim to specialize in foot care, only physicians who have successfully completed an examination process by the American Board of Podiatric Surgery can call themselves board-certified podiatric surgeons. This distinction guarantees that the doctor has completed four years of podiatric medical school plus a surgical residency program or postdoctoral education. After several years of clinical practice, a doctor may apply for certification. To maintain this certification, a podiatrist must participate annually in continuing education and be tested every 10 years to assess the current level of knowledge.

Podiatrists are medical professionals trained to use the latest in techniques and equipment to keep feet healthy and working well. We use a wide range of therapies and surgeries to treat conditions related to foot structure and function, and we can also teach you how to avoid foot problems in the future. We know good foot health can enhance your daily existence and improve your quality of life. For an appointment for complete foot care on Tuesday, please call 234-5571, at Rice District Community Hospital.

P.S. Hospitals and other health-care providers rely on board certification to ensure that doctors are fully qualified for their work.
