Views On Dental Health

CAVITY PROTECTION

Dental decay is the most widespread dental disease among children. Wouldn't it be nice if you could protect children's teeth from decay? Well, now we can! Your dentist can apply sealant to your child's teeth to help prevent or reduce this harmful condition.

A sealant is a clear or shaded plastic material that is applied to the biting or chewing surfaces of the back teeth, where decay occurs most often. This sealant acts as a barrier, protecting the decay-prone areas of the back teeth from plaque and acid. If these culprits can't get in and do their damage, you have no decay.

Sealants are recommended for all children, even those who receive topical applications of fluoride or who live in communities with fluoridated water. Although fluoride helps fight decay on smooth surfaces of teeth, it is least effective in pits and fissures of the biting surfaces of the back teeth. Each tooth takes only a few minutes to seal and the procedure is completely painless.

Presented as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of JOHN B. MYRES, D.D.S., 700 S. McCarty Avenue, Eagle Lake, 234-3525.
