All agreed that this would be a good idea, since our scrapbooks are a record of our chapter's existence and are kept at the Fayette Heritage Museum and Archives. Chaplain Miller commented on the Louis Franke grave marking ceremony that MH Chapter performed as part of the Franke family reunion in May.

Because of the rain, the ceremony was held on the Fayette County Courthouse grounds.

President Williams thanked those present for their attendance and gave special thanks to hostesses Chris Jarvis and Lillian Dryer for their great hospitality and delicious luncheon of cold cuts, cheese, tea/sodas and cook-

Famous pro golfer Jack Nicklaus has called "lively feet" a key component of any successful golf game. Knowing how the feet can help or hurt a golf game is an important topic for the 45 million Americans who enjoy golf recreationally. The lower body, led by the feet, affects timing, distance, and direction in golf. Any problems with the feet, including corns or calluses, can impair timing and balance and hurt a day on the links. The foot's biomechanics are a critical aspect of a good golf swing. Because weight on the feet must shift quickly from set-up to backswing to downswing, it is crucial that the foot does not have improper biomechanics, such as excessive pronation or supination.

Pro golfers or amateur weekend warrior, it's no surprise that your feet are subject to injury and pain more often than any other part of the body. When the aggravating effects of off-balance biomechanics, injury, disease, or deformity are added, painful, serious foot problems can often result. Regular preventive care by a trained podiatrist can help you avoid disabling foot conditions and play a vital role in maintaining your overall health. Are your feet hurting? Call us at 234-5571, at Rice Medical Center, for an appointment. I am there every Tuesday. P.S. Your podiatrist can address any foot problems that may be hurting your golf game or putting you at risk for injury.
