LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Keep Trying On Bond Election

Dear Editor:
The bond failure this past Saturday was not a complete loss. My taxes did not go up so I won. Several people expressed a concern about the district's economy and how a tax increase will hurt everyone. This past week the Legislature in Austin may cut our taxes by about the same amount our bond would have raised our taxes and the appraisal district has some early figures that show the oil and gas values have increased by 100 million dollars compared to last year. This means that the oil and gas industry would provide about 50% of the money to support our school up from the present 40%.

The legislature appears to have added more math and science requirements to graduate, which means more math and science teachers. Those teachers are some of the hardest to hire now.

Yes a consolidated Junior High does take something away from our individual communities. I have seen first hand how things changed in Eagle Lake when my high school went away. I also think my three kids got a better education than I did thanks to Rice High School. We as parents want the best education for our kids. It is always easier to look back than forward.

I still support the idea of a new high school and consolidated junior high as presented in the past bond and I hope our administration, school board and communities will try again.

Thanks To Police Dept.

Dear Editor:
I live on S. McCarty and daily I see the speeding trucks and other traffic come racing by. In the last few weeks I am seeing more and more Eagle Lake Police cars working speeding truck and other traffic, but mostly the big trucks.

As everyone knows that drives to the high school in the morning, big trucks are a problem. And I believe that the solution is a 4 lane roadway between Eagle Lake and the High School. We shouldn't have to kill anyone else before the city, county and state get behind this effort.

boost from them. But I must tell you that trucks that are driving over the speed limit on bad tires and brakes are a real threat.

And our Police Department has been out there working them hard, and should be commended for a fine effort.

Thanks Eagle Lake PD
