Wildlife Incentives Program

The USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Texas has set a Dec. 15, 2006, sign-up deadline for the 2007 Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP).

"The funds allocated for WHIP will help Texas landowners restore and conserve native wildlife habitat," said Dr. Larry Butler, NRCS state conservationist for Texas. "The program provides financial and technical assistance to producers applying approved conservation measures that help improve wildlife habitat."

The state habitat priorities for WHIP are based on recommendations from the Texas State Technical Committee. At-risk and declining wildlife species are the primary targets for habitat improvement.

All counties within the state are eligible to participate in WHIP; however, funding priority will be placed on the Major Land Resource Areas (MLRAs) that have experienced a notable decline in native wildlife habitat. Those priority areas can be found in the Texas WHIP State Plan on the NRCS Texas Web site. Through WHIP, NRCS will develop agreements with landowners to install conservation practices that best benefit the wildlife species of concern. Cost-share assistance will be provided for most of the needed practices.

Immediately following the end of the sign-up period, all applications will be ranked. Producers with an approved application will work with an NRCS conservation planner to develop a contract and a plan and will begin implementing conservation practices next spring.

Local NRCS field offices have complete details for this program. Additional information, including ranking criteria, eligible practices, and cost-share rates for all programs, can also be found on the Texas NRCS Web site.
