DENTAL CARE FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

People 65 years of age and older, like younger patients, should see their dentist at least twice a year for check ups and cleaning of the teeth.

All cavities, gum disease, and other dental infections should be treated.

Patients wearing full or partial dentures should have them evaluated for proper comfort and fit.

Dentures that have been worn for many years may not fit well anymore. Loose dentures make it difficult to eat and speak and do not support the face as well.

Your dentist can sometimes remedy the problem by relining the denture, but a new denture should be made about every 5 to 7 years, or when the dentures cannot be used comfortably. In some cases, implants can be used to help secure the denture.

This is usually most needed in the lower jaw, and it sometimes is the only way to help the patient stabilize and use their denture. Your dentist can determine if you are a good candidate for implants.
