Lighthouse Awards

the core of this reading program is computer software, which affords rapidly executed, non-competitive practice sessions, multiple options and immediate positive feedback.

With volunteer mentors assisting the one-on-one intervention, both youngster and adult enjoy the unique opportunity for trans-generational as well as trans-cultural interactions.

Interesting and frequently amusing discussions can get started when exploring meanings and uses of words.

The generation gap is alive and well! This year owes its success to a tireless group of dedicated volunteer mentors - Harold and Lois Raabe, Bernice and Len Bornstein, Sara Nelson, Fair Wells, Daniel Goodwin, Tony Huberta, Jane Meldahl, Pat Joyce, Lois Herman, Richard Clipson and stand-bys Eurma and Mary Gordon - it would not have happened without you. Thank you on behalf of The Lighthouse Readers.

What a difference a year makes! In 2006, a small group of individuals started to put form and substance to a dream with four cannibalized computers, a really top rate software program, very little money, and lots of enthusiasm.

Stashed in a small space next door to the kitchen pantry, the greatest challenge was to figure out how you convince lively youth, who have just come from a day at school, that 15 minutes of reading extra practice is a cool thing to do. Especially when compared to other neat things like games and art and throwing hoops or playing football with the guys.

You see the results: being a Lighthouse reader can be cool! All active participants have pre-registered for next term in order to secure their computer time. Jason has signed on to mentor younger children as well as to continue his own practice! A remarkable young man! Pre-registrations already requested by previous non-believers will double current enrollment! Yes, 15 minutes of reading practice three days a week is cool!

To point out the obvious, success means we dreamers need double the number of computers, more than double the number of dedicated volunteers, renovation of a larger space already donated by the Attwater Prairie Chicken Refuge.

Citizens of Eagle Lake, do you want to make a difference? Anyone interested in adding their own unique talents, time, or gifts to a growing number of folks who have caught the dream, please speak up. The Lighthouse Readers need YOU.
