Tax Values

Continued from front page increased by 6.2 percent to $200.1 million.

Mitchell noted that figures he provided for this report on residential increases were overall market values and did not reflect tax exemptions or caps.

He said individual property values may increase more or less than averages.

Mitchell said any taxpayers who have questions about their individual property values should contact his office at 732-8222.

If questions about values cannot be resolved, property owners may file for a protest hearing. Those hearing are scheduled to begin June 19.

Fire

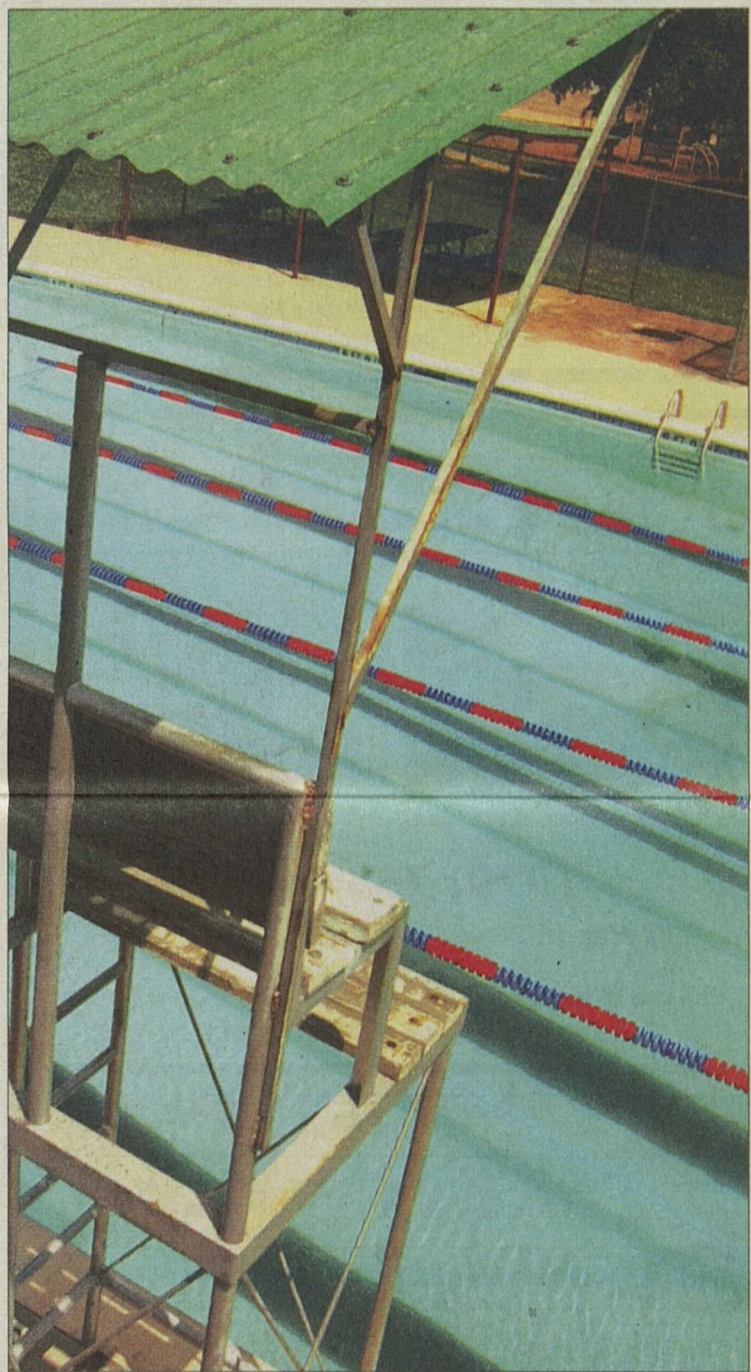

Continued from front page Goins, said Tuesday, that production at the facility was continuing and that temporary maintenance arrangements were being made.

He said that no damage estimate had been completed yet.

Goins said the plant employs about 250 people and manufactures equipment for oil field services.

Firefighters work to cut open a door in the building at Hanover that caught fire on Sunday evening. See story on page 1.

What's missing from this picture?

The swimming pool is in bad need of lifeguards for the summer. Officials say that the pool will open on Friday, June 15 at 1 p.m., but due to the lifeguard shortage the number of patrons allowed will have to be limited. Anyone interested can contact city hall for information, 234-2640.

The home of Mrs. Evelyn Thomas at 626 Melody Lane is the Garden Club's Yard of the Month. See story page 10.
