Treatment for Asbestos-Related Cancer
A rare type of cancer is associated with exposure to asbestos. Asbestos is a substance that has been shown to be carcinogenic and may place persons at risk for this condition after exposure for only a few weeks. A long period of time, for example 35 to 40 years, typically transpires between the time of initial exposure and development of malignant tumors. This condition involves the mesothelium, which is the cells lining an organ. Organs affected by this condition include the lungs, abdominal organs, and the heart. Cancer of the mesothelium is called mesothelioma. Early symptoms may be similar to those observed with pneumonia and can include shortness of breath, persistent cough, and chest and abdominal pain.
Although the survival rate for mesothelioma typically ranges from 4 to 12 months from the time of symptom onset, it is possible for persons affected by this condition to live for much longer. Available treatments for this condition include surgery, chemotherapy, and radiation. The preferred treatment is a combination of the chemotherapy medications gemtazone (Alimta) and cisplatin. Folic acid and interferin B12 must also be used with gemtazone since this medication interferes with their normal metabolism. A combination of cisplatin and carboplatin may also be used.

Habitat Home Planned For Eagle Lake

At the August 27, 2007 monthly business meeting, the Board of Directors for Colorado County Habitat for Humanity authorized Lin Baron, Family Selection Chairman, to begin the process to select the next "homeowner partner" for a house in Eagle Lake.

President Christine Feehery commented that "now is the time to select our next Eagle Lake partner so that we are ready to begin construction in late spring of 2008."

CCHFH expects to break ground on its' next house in Weimar within the next few weeks. Shortly after the Weimar home is completed, CCHFH hopes to begin work on a third house in Eagle Lake.

Another decision from the August meeting was the selection of new board officers for the 2007 - 2008 program year.

Scott Mattingly was elected President and Phil Willenborg as Vice President. Lorraine Novosad and Travis Wegenhoft are returning to serve another term as secretary and treasurer respectfully.

County Judge Al Jamison and Scott Mattingly praised and thanked out-going president Christine Feehery for her dedication and leadership of CCHFH for the past several years.

Sr. Joyce Jilek reported that International Day of Prayer information packets have been sent to the local church pastors, encouraging the churches to set aside the third weekend in September to make housing a matter of conscience in the faith community.

The letter asked the pastors to shape the worship service for September 16th around the theme of loving God by serving one another.

The packet also included various Habitat materials that could be used on this day to spread the message of service.

President Christine Feehery thanked the members for their support and promised to stay involved as the Family Support Liaison.

Feehery announced that the next Board Meeting was scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Monday September 24, at Youth and Family Services building at 1336 Fannin Street in Columbus.

Xi Pi Psi Holds Monthly Meeting

President Ernie Sommerlatte hosted the Beginning Day meeting in her home, with an important announcement. Beta Sigma Phi International announced our chapter had earned a 3 star rating. This is the highest rating, which is earned by carrying out the purposes of the sorority. This includes community projects that are social, service and cultural.

Congratulations, Xi Pi Psi members.

The new theme for the year is, "Sing A Song of Sisterhood," The hostess of the meeting carried out the theme. Members then received their new yearbooks, which were cleverly decorated and neatly bound full of information.

Our thanks to Joyce Stancik and her daughter Darlene Argo, for this contribution.

Members were saddened with the loss of Mrs. Annie Broesche, our 1993 Lady of the Year. Yellow roses were sent to her service, in memory of our honorable lady, who gave so much of herself to our community.

Joyce Stancik presented a program on Revitalizing and Cleaning of the Clear

Creek Cemetery, outside of Weimar. She and Ernest Mae Seaholm, along with many others began the project and are in hopes of being able to make the historical cemetery visible, for many relatives. Clear Creek Cemetery was started in 1858.

Members were amazed with the progress and dedication these citizens have in preserving such a historical landmark.

A yearbook review followed with a year full of projects, meetings, programs, secret sister birthdays and the biggest project of all, the Community Birthday Calendar. The 2008 calendar should arrive sometime in November. The price of $5 will remain the same as previous years.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Jo Ann Gertson. The meeting closed with the closing ritual and refreshments were enjoyed by all.
