With Immeasurable Thanks

We would like to express our Immeasurable Thanks to the Individuals, Volunteers and Public Services, Clubs, Rice High School Coaches, Boosters, as well as the other local Businesses and Organizations for the aid rendered during and after the devastating fire that destroyed our home in Altair on February 23.

We are so humbled and grateful for the outpouring of generosity given to us by the small close knit communities that we are so very fortunate to be a part of. We Sincerely Thank You All, Sidney Perry, Cody Moore and Family

Canker Sore Vs. Cold Sore

What's the difference between a canker sore and a cold sore?

One of the main differences between the two is that a canker sore occurs inside the mouth and a cold sore usually occurs outside the mouth. A canker sore is a small ulcer that has a white or gray base and a red border. There may be one or more in the mouth at the same time. Canker sores usually heal inside of two weeks. Using an antimicrobial mouth rinse can help relieve the irritation.

Cold sores - also called fever blisters or herpes simplex - are groups of painful, fluid-filled blisters that emerge around the lips and sometimes under the nose or chin. Cold sores are usually caused by a herpes virus and are extremely contagious, but usually heal in about a week. An over-the-counter topical anesthetic can provide temporary relief.

Prescription anti-viral drugs are available and can help fight this type of infection.
